MORAL: It was about remaking your world.

Although the classroom was not the ideal environment, I still learned something valuable.

So, I began to think about what my values were. What did I really believe in? What was important to me? And how did I want to live my life?

I realized that I wanted to make a difference in the world. I wanted to help others. I wanted to create a better future.

And that is what I did. I worked hard and I never gave up. I never lost sight of my goals.

And in the end, I was able to make a difference. I was able to help others. I was able to create a better future.

So, if you want to make a difference in the world, just remember this: It is possible. It is within your reach. All you have to do is believe in yourself and never give up.
MORRISON: In Minneapolis; absolutely! I go every week.

RODGERS: You still go there, then?

MORRISON: Yes, certainly.

RODGERS: They're terrific, aren't you, some of those religious feelings?

MORRISON: You know, they're expressed throughout the whole of our tradition.

RODGERS: They're expressed throughout the whole of our tradition, aren't they?
