

Butterfly Hide-and-Seek

Camouflage your butterfly to help it hide from hungry predators!

Camouflage helps animals and insects survive. It lets them blend in with their surroundings so that dangerous predators can't find them. A green grasshopper, for example, is hard to spot when it's sitting on a green leaf, and a furry white bunny can blend into the landscape on a snowy day.

1. Cut out the butterfly.
2. Decide where to hide your butterfly.
3. Then color the butterfly, picking colors that help it blend in with the background you chose. If you want to hide a butterfly on a rug, for example, color it to match the rug. If you want to hide it on a tree, color it to look like bark.
4. Have everyone hide his or her butterfly. Then play hide-and-seek.
5. Are the butterflies hard to find? Why? Do you think a hungry bird could find your butterfly?

Visit pbskids.org/curiousgeorge and check out curiousgeorge.com for more online fun.