Ain't Nothin' But a Pound Dog (two-part episode)

Martha loses her collar and winds up in the animal shelter. When Martha's family comes to take her home, she decides she can't leave her shelter friends behind. Adopting that many dogs is out of the question, so Martha, Helen, and T.D. cook up a plan to find families for the pound pooches.

Carolina Picks a Lily

Carolina adopts a new puppy, and she's so excited. It matches her purse! But when the gang points out the pup won't stay pocketbook-sized for long (check out those paws), she regrets her impulsive adoption. Will they be able to find a home for Lily?

Martha in the White House (two-part episode)

The new president is looking for a dog to live in the White House. Martha knows the perfect dog for the job! What better way to recommend some of her neighborhood pals than to put in a few calls to the White House herself?

Martha's Life in Crime (two-part episode)

Martha tells the story of her puppy days in the animal shelter and her excitement in finding a family. But it turns out that Helen wasn't the first person who adopted Martha.

Paws and Effect

When Martha gets a piece of glass in her paw, everyone realizes that littering hurts more than the environment.

The Trouble with Teddy

Teddy, a neighborhood dog, is sick, and the vet doesn't know why. Even Martha can't diagnose the patient. The dog pack scours the yard for hazardous materials—but the cause of the problem could be right under their noses.

There Goes the Neighborhood

Everyone knows dogs don't like cats, but could one little kitten change Martha's mind?

Martha's Millions

When Carolina reads about a dog inheriting millions, she's appalled. What could a dog do with all that money? Martha discovers that it isn't who spends it, but how you spend it, that matters most.
